The Government may serve to place the responsibility where it properly belongs. The first announcement emanated from Mr. McCulloch in his famous Fort Wayne speech...

The same policy was declared by the President, and as soon as the judgment of Congress could be had, its unanimous approval was recorded.

Then followed the bill introduced into the House of Representatives by the Secretary of the Treasury, which not only embodied the opinions he and so cogently urged in his speech and report...

If the opinions and suggestions were honestly and ardently entertained by the Secretary, upon the refusal of Congress to give him the power indispensable to his position, the responsibility should have been thrown upon Congress...
